

Could it be that You care – Paul G. Barnsley

Could it be that You care to listen Lord,
To the call of a troubled soul?
Hear my cry, my God,
As I weep and long for You.
Could it be that You'll hear my cries, O Lord,
When I feel so far away
From the life You've shown
Through Jesus here on earth?

Yet if I lift my eyes and look up to the hills,
I know that's where my strength will come from.
Yet if I lift my eyes and look up to the hills,
Yes I'll see my Father watching over me.

Realism in worship – the writers of the Psalms knew we need to be able to voice our doubts and question God about where He is when we feel far away... Look at Psalm 88; it's not wrong to voice these feelings. Yet we also need to grasp hold of God's promises and reaffirm our faith as we proclaim "Yet if I lift my eyes and look up to the hills, ... I'll see my Father watching over ME." (Psalm 121). Be real with God in worship – he knows you!
